Counsel attending the conference must be well-informed about the factual and legal issues of the case and to have authority to enter appropriate stipulations and participate in settlement discussions. Counsel appearing at the conference may be required to proceed at trial notwithstanding the naming of others as designated trial counsel.

The court DIRECTS counsel to review and comply with the following instructions:

Promptly upon receipt of this notice, plaintiff's counsel is DIRECTED to initiate discussions with other counsel to determine the undisputed facts and to clarify each party's contentions.

On or before June 17, 2021, plaintiff's counsel is to email to the chambers email address (axon_chambers@alnd.uscourts.gov) a JOINT PROPOSED PRETRIAL ORDER in Word format, with a copy to opposing counsel. A sample of the proposed pretrial order and its Exhibit A is attached at the end of these instructions to illustrate the format preferred by the court and the substance of such an order. Each order must be tailored to fit the circumstances of the individual case. The court anticipates that, in most cases, at the end of the pretrial scheduling conference, the court will adopt and sign the proposed pretrial order with only minor insertions and changes. The standard Exhibit A to the proposed pretrial order will be incorporated by reference into the pretrial order but need not be reproduced by counsel unless counsel propose significant changes.

The court DIRECTS the parties to include the following dates in the proposed pretrial order regarding motion in limine deadlines: (1) motions in limine shall be filed on or before July 19, 2021; and (2) responses in opposition shall be filed on or before June 29, 2021. If the parties need additional information or clarification to complete their joint proposed pretrial order, they may email chambers.

DONE and ORDERED this March 9, 2021.

EXHIBIT A – STANDARD PRETRIAL PROCEDURES

1. Damages. No later than thirty (30) calendar days before the date set for trial, the parties shall file and serve a list itemizing all damages and equitable relief being claimed or sought; such list shall show the amount requested and, where applicable, the method and basis of computation.
2. Witnesses – Exchange of Lists.

The parties shall file witness lists on or before July 6, 2021. If a witness shown on the list will be presented by deposition, the party designating that witness must specify the pages of the deposition to be used.

Objections to witness lists due on or before July 19, 2021.

Unless specifically agreed by the parties in writing or allowed by the court for good cause shown, the parties shall be precluded from offering substantive evidence through any witness not included on the party's witness list. The listing of a witness does not commit the party to have that witness available at trial or to call that witness to testify, but it does preclude the party from objecting to the presentation of that witness's testimony by another party.

As to any witnesses shown on the list to be presented by deposition, within seven (7) business days after the filing of the list, an opposing party may serve a list of additional pages of the deposition to be used, and may serve and file a list disclosing any objections to the use of the deposition testimony under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 32 or 26(a)(3)(B). Any objections to deposition testimony should be accompanied by excerpts from the depositions including the testimony to which the objection relates. Objections not made within such time, other than objections under Federal Rules of Evidence 402 and 403, shall be deemed waived, unless such failure to timely object is excused by the court for good cause shown.

3. Exhibits.

The parties shall file exhibit lists on or before July 6, 2021.

Objections to exhibit lists must be filed on or before July 19, 2021.

- (a) Marking. Each party that anticipates offering more than five (5) exhibits as substantive evidence shall premark the exhibits in advance of trial, using exhibit labels and lists available from the Clerk of Court. The court will provide up to 100 labels; if any party needs more labels, that party must use labels of the same type as those supplied by the court. Counsel must contact the courtroom deputy for the appropriate exhibit list form for use at trial. The court urges counsel to be judicious in determining which documents are actually relevant to necessary elements of the case.

- (b) Examination by Opposing Party. Except where beyond the party's control or otherwise impractical (e.g., records from an independent third-party being obtained by subpoena), each party shall make exhibits available for inspection and copying. The presentation of evidence at trial shall not ordinarily be interrupted for opposing counsel to examine a document that has been identified and was made available for inspection.
- (c) Court's Copies. In addition to the premarked trial exhibits mentioned above, the court requests for the bench an exhibit notebook of anticipated trial exhibits. The notebook should include a copy of the Exhibit List. The parties shall also email a courtesy copy of the exhibit notebook, in Word format, to the chamber's email address at axon\_chambers@alnd.uscourts.gov.
- (d) Limiting Personal Information in Transcripts and Exhibits. The judiciary's privacy policy restricts the publication of certain personal data in documents filed with the court. The policy requires limiting Social Security and financial account numbers to the last four digits, using only initials for the names of minor children, and limiting dates of birth to the year. However, if such information is elicited during testimony or other court proceedings, it may become available to the public. The better practice is for you to avoid introducing this information into the record in the first place. Please take this into account when questioning witnesses, presenting documents, or making other statements in court. If a restricted item is mentioned in court, you may ask to have it stricken from the record or partially redacted to conform to the privacy policy, or the court may do so on its own motion.

THE PARTIES ARE REMINDED THAT THEY WILL NOT BE ALLOWED TO USE AT TRIAL ANY WITNESS OR EXHIBIT NOT DISCLOSED IN ACCORDANCE WITH FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE 26(a)

OR 26(e), UNLESS THE FAILURE WAS SUBSTANTIALLY JUSTIFIED OR THE OFFERING PARTY CAN SHOW THAT ITS FAILURE TO DISCLOSE WAS HARMLESS. *See Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(c)(1).

4. Use of Depositions at Trial.

- (a) The court will accept the parties' written agreement to use a deposition at trial even though the witness is available. In the absence of such an agreement, parties must comply with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 32.
- (b) Before trial, counsel must provide the courtroom deputy with a copy of all depositions to be used as exhibits at trial.
- (c) To the extent possible, counsel will designate the portion of any deposition that counsel anticipates reading by citing pages and lines in the final witness list. Objections, if any, to those portions (citing pages and lines) with supporting authority must be filed at least TEN (10) business days before trial.
- (d) Use of videotape depositions is permitted and the parties must make good faith efforts to agree on admissibility or edit the videotape to resolve objections.
- (e) In a non-jury trial, for any deposition offered as a trial exhibit, counsel shall attach to the front of the exhibit a summary of what each party intends to prove by the deposition testimony, with line and page citations, and include an appropriate concordance of the deposition pages offered.

5. Trial Submissions to Court.

The court does not request and the parties shall not file trial briefs.

6. Jury Charges and Verdict Form.

On or before August 9, 2021, the parties shall file a single, joint proposed jury charge, including all necessary instructions, or definitions applicable to the specific issues of the case.

- (a) Each requested instruction must be numbered and presented on a separate sheet of paper with authority cited.
- (b) In their joint proposed jury materials, counsel are to include all necessary instructions or definitions, specifically including: (1) the prima facie elements of each cause of action and defense asserted; (2) legal definitions required by the jury; (3) items of damages; and (4) methods of calculation of damages. Counsel are to use the Eleventh Circuit Pattern Jury Instructions, or appropriate state pattern jury instructions, as modified by case law or statutory amendments, wherever possible. Any deviations must be identified, and accompanied with legal authorities for the proposed deviation.
- (c) Even if the parties, in good faith, cannot agree on all instructions, definitions or questions, the parties should nonetheless submit a single, unified charge. Each disputed instruction, definition, or question should be set out in bold type, underlined or italics and identified as disputed. Each disputed item should be labeled to show which party is requesting the disputed language. Accompanying each instruction shall be all authority or related materials upon which each party relies. The parties shall email the unified charge in Word format, to the chambers email address at axon\_chambers@alnd.uscourts.gov.

Together with the joint proposed jury charge, the parties must file a joint proposed verdict form. The court expects that shortly after the close of evidence, the parties will submit any amendments to the proposed jury charge and verdict form required by the evidence presented at trial.

EXHIBIT B – GUIDELINES FOR CONDUCT OF TRIALS

These guidelines reflect the standard practices of this court in the trial of cases. They do not alter the rules of civil or criminal procedure, the rules of evidence, or local rules.

1. Hours. Trials ordinarily commence at 9:00 a.m. and continue until approximately 5:00 p.m., Mondays through Fridays.

a. Punctuality. You, your client, and your witnesses should be present and ready to proceed promptly at the appointed time, both at the beginning of the day and after recesses. Counsel should be present at the courthouse at least 30 minutes before the beginning of each trial day to avoid delays and to be available to discuss unanticipated problems.

b. Recesses. A witness whose examination has not been completed at the time of a recess or adjournment should be back in the witness box at the time trial is scheduled to resume.

c. Requests for changes. Make known to the court as soon as can be anticipated any requests for changes in the trial schedule, including those relating to religious holidays or arising because of unavailability of witnesses.

d. Conferences. In jury cases, the judge may hold a brief conference in chambers at the end of the trial day or before the trial commences or resumes, or both, at which time counsel can discuss the schedule of witnesses and documents and any anticipated evidentiary problems. Alert the court reporter if you want to have some motion, argument, proffer, or other matter placed on the record during the conference.

e. Settlement discussions. Although settlements should occur to the extent possible before the trial is scheduled to begin, counsel are encouraged to discuss settlement as the trial progresses. These discussions should, however, ordinarily be conducted during recesses and adjournments. Do not assume that the court will delay the start or resumption of trial for such discussions. Advise the court if at any point you believe the court's assistance might be helpful in arriving at a settlement.

2. Selection of jury.

a. Voir Dire. At the conclusion of general voir dire by the court, counsel will be allowed 20 minutes per party to conduct their own voir dire.

b. Size. The size of the jury in civil trials ranges from six to twelve, with alternates to be set by the judge, taking into account such factors as the expected length of trial and the number of jurors available for that and other scheduled trials. Absent special agreement by the parties, only a unanimous verdict of all selected jurors not excused or discharged for good cause may be received.

c. Peremptory challenges. The number of peremptory challenges to be allowed will depend upon (1) the number of jurors not excused or challenged for cause and (2) the size of the jury to be selected. For example, if 18 jurors remain after any challenges for cause, the court might allow each side five peremptory challenges to select a jury of 8 or might allow each side four peremptory challenges to select a jury of 10. Peremptory challenges are exercised by indicating on a form (provided by the court) the name and juror number of the person(s) so challenged. When completed, these forms are shown to the court and opposing counsel at the bench, outside the hearing of the panel; at this time, the court can consider any "Batson" issues. Subject to consideration of any "Batson" issues, the peremptory challenges shown on the lists will be accepted by the court. Jurors not peremptorily challenged by either side will, in the order in which they were presented, be deemed as selected, up to the number of jurors previously determined by the court. As an example, for a jury of eight, the first 8 jurors not peremptorily challenged by either side will constitute the jury.

3. Opening statements. Opening statements are limited to 20 minutes per party. Although a description of the basic claims and defenses and of the principal factual disputes between the parties is usually helpful, do not be argumentative and do not in jury cases refer to disputes about questions of law. In non-jury cases, opening statements are frequently omitted or limited to stating what claims and defenses are being pursued and what witnesses will be called.

4. Witnesses. Cooperative witnesses not immediately needed should, to the extent practical, be placed “on call.” However, you remain responsible for having sufficient witnesses available in court so that, absent developments that could not have been reasonably anticipated, the trial may proceed during the normal trial hours without the need for adjournments or lengthy recesses to obtain further witnesses. Since defendants should be ready to proceed with their evidence promptly at the conclusion of the plaintiff’s presentation, plaintiff’s counsel should keep defendants’ counsel advised as to when they expect to complete their presentation of evidence.

a. Order. Counsel are expected to cooperate in resolving scheduling problems, including agreement in most circumstances for a witness to be called out of the normal order, even if the testimony of another witness is interrupted. Such accommodations are the norm for physicians and other similar professionals called as witnesses and may be appropriate for other witnesses with personal, family, or occupational conflicts. Counsel are also expected to cooperate in placing “on call” those employees of another party whose absence would disrupt such party’s normal business activities.

b. Production. Do not ask opposing counsel to produce a witness or a document in a way that might suggest to the jury that such counsel would be concealing evidence if the witness or document is not produced. Address such requests to opposing counsel (or, if necessary, to the court) in a manner that will not be heard by the jury.

c. Oaths. The courtroom deputy ordinarily administers an oath/affirmation to the witnesses and immediately asks their name and place of residence. If you know that the standard questions might be inappropriate (for example, the witness is in prison), so advise the deputy before the witness is called to the stand.

d. Release. Witnesses should be released from further attendance or subpoena as soon as they are no longer needed. After testifying, a witness shall be deemed as released by consent unless counsel or the court indicates that the witness should not be so excused. You should not consent to release of a witness if you will later offer in evidence a prior inconsistent statement about which the witness was not examined or if you wish to make a proffer of testimony of that witness to which an objection was sustained.

e. Exclusion. Requests under Federal Rule of Evidence 615 for exclusion of witnesses from the courtroom should be made before examination of the first witness begins, preferably before opening statements. Be alert for witnesses arriving during trial and inadvertently coming into the courtroom. Although the Rule does not prevent talking with excluded witnesses during recesses about their expected testimony, do not in such discussions disclose the courtroom testimony given by other witnesses. After testifying and provided they will not be recalled, witnesses are no longer subject to the Rule and may remain in the courtroom.

5. Examination of witnesses. Absent physical disabilities, examination of a witness should ordinarily be conducted while the witness is seated in the witness box and counsel is standing at the lectern.

a. Approaching clerk's desk or witness box. Permission of the court to approach the clerk's desk or the witness box is not necessary if for the purposes of submitting or obtaining an exhibit, handing an exhibit to the witness, or conducting examination about an exhibit when counsel needs to be next to the witness during the examination. Return to the lectern after such examination is finished.

b. Other locations. Request permission of the court if you wish the witness to step from the witness box (for example, to display an injury, to prepare a sketch, or to identify objects in a photograph). Assist the court in assuring that your voice and that of the witness are sufficiently loud to be heard and that opposing counsel's view is not obstructed.

c. Depositions. As you use or read from a deposition, indicate the page and line number of the starting and stopping points. Colloquies and objections of counsel should ordinarily be omitted, as should questions that are rephrased or changed prior to the answer being given. When the deposition refers to an exhibit, counsel may, in addition to the identification used in the deposition, indicate the exhibit number used during the trial. Persons asked to read the deponent's testimony should do so fairly and impartially. Depositions are not ordinarily read aloud in non-jury cases; you should submit to the court well before the trial is completed a list of the portions you want the court to read.

d. Harassment. Treat witnesses with courtesy, even when conducting vigorous impeachment. Do not shout at, ridicule, harass, or unfairly embarrass a witness. Use temperate language when requesting the court's assistance to control or direct a witness who is giving unresponsive or argumentative answers.

6. Objections. Rise before (or as) you object; this draws the attention of the court and other counsel to you and should alert the witness not to answer until your objection is ruled upon. While standing, state that you are objecting and specify concisely the ground(s) of your objection (for example, "hearsay," "irrelevant," "lack of personal knowledge," "leading question"). Do not make a speech or argument to the jury. Do not disparage opposing counsel or the witness. Do not attempt to summarize other evidence. Do not suggest an answer to the witness.

a. Response by offeror. The person who asked the question should not interrupt the person making the objection except to withdraw the question or if the objection itself is being made in an improper manner (for example, as an argument to the jury or to suggest an answer to the witness). After the objection has been stated, you may indicate if the evidence is being offered only for a limited purpose or only against certain parties.

b. Argument on the objection. Neither counsel should present arguments regarding the objection unless authorized or invited by the court. If you wish to be heard in argument, request the court's permission.

c. Continuing objection. In some circumstances you may be allowed to have a “continuing objection” to a particular line of inquiry, and therefore, you may not have to repeat your objection to a series of questions. Typically, this occurs when your objection on the grounds of relevancy is overruled and you wish to make a relevancy objection to further questions on the same subject.

d. Anticipating evidentiary problems. Evidentiary questions which may involve extended discussion and argument should be anticipated and called to the court’s attention at the start or end of the trial day so that the question can be adequately considered without having to interrupt the trial schedule.

7. Special equipment. Audio-visual equipment should be brought into the courtroom and tested before or after trial hours or during a recess. You are responsible for seeing that the trial is not substantially delayed while such equipment is being set up. Make arrangements with the courtroom deputy if you need special access to the courtroom.

8. Closing arguments. Unless otherwise allowed by the court, closing arguments are limited to 30 minutes to the side. Counsel for the party having the burden of proof shall be the first to present closing argument and may reserve a portion of the allotted time (not in excess of initial time taken) to respond to the other parties’ arguments. A party seeking damages and who is permitted to divide its time of argument should address both liability and damages issues in its initial argument. Do not express your own personal opinions about the facts. Do not invite jurors to return a verdict as if they were in the position of one of the parties. You may leave the lectern, but keep your voice sufficiently loud to be heard by other counsel, the judge, and the court reporter.

9. Instructions. Persons are not ordinarily permitted to enter or leave the courtroom during the time the court is instructing the jury. The court will provide counsel with an opportunity to present objections or exceptions to the instructions outside the hearing of the jury and before the deliberations begin either at the bench or after excusing the jurors from the courtroom. Counsel are expected to remain in general attendance at the courthouse while the jury is deliberating; the failure to do so may be treated as a waiver of any right to object should the jury request and be given supplemental instructions.

10. Other Matters of Proper Decorum and Conduct.

a. Do not argue with or disparage other counsel in the hearing of the jury. In most situations, the court's permission should be obtained before counsel engage in dialogue between themselves in the courtroom. Side comments between counsel should be limited to situations in which such conversations are intended to facilitate the fair and efficient conduct of the trial and not for any tactical advantage; they should, moreover, be done in a respectful and courteous manner that does not detract from the dignity of the proceedings. In-court offers to stipulate should ordinarily be made only if previously agreed upon or if counsel has reason to believe the offer would have been accepted if made outside the courtroom.

b. All should rise and remain standing and quiet while court is being formally opened. Counsel should rise and remain standing while examining a witness, making an objection, presenting a motion, request, or argument, or otherwise addressing the court. At other times while court is in session, remain seated.

c. Address or refer to witnesses or other parties using their surname.

d. While opposing counsel is presenting a matter to the court or the jury or is examining a witness, other counsel and their clients or associates should not engage in conversation or activity at counsel table or otherwise move about the courtroom in a manner that might be distracting.

e. Indicating agreement and disagreement. No one should by words, facial expressions, or other conduct indicate personal agreement or disagreement with what is being said by the court, the jury, an attorney, or a witness. Counsel are responsible for assuring that their clients and the friends or supporters of their clients are warned about such behavior.

f. Attendance. Parties are not required to remain in continuous attendance during civil trials. To facilitate arranging for the attendance of witnesses and procuring documents, attorneys may, without need for permission from the court, enter and leave the courtroom during the trial from time to time if their client remains represented by co-counsel. Such movements should, however, be done in an unobtrusive and non-distracting manner. Paralegals not expected to testify may, without the need for special permission from the court, be inside the railing to assist counsel.

g. Findings under Federal Rule of Evidence 104(a). Do not disclose to the jury in any manner the findings of the court made under Federal Rule of Evidence 104(a) in connection with questions of admissibility. For example, do not argue to the jury that you were allowed to present evidence of A's statement because the court found under Federal Rule of Evidence 801(d)(2)(E) that A and B were engaged in a conspiracy. Similarly, do not ask in the presence of the jury for the court to "recognize" a witness as an "expert" or as "hostile."

h. Smoking, eating, and drinking. Smoking, eating, and drinking (other than water) are never permitted in the courtrooms.

i. Cellular telephones; recording devices. Keep cellular telephones in an "off" position while in the courtroom. Recording devices may be used in the courthouse only with express permission of the court.
